

WHITE PAPER

THE WAR IN VIETNAM
LIBERATION
OR AGGRESSION ?

REPUBLIC OF VIETNAM
Ministry of Foreign Affairs
Saigon 1968

THE
LABADIE COLLECTION
—
ACQUIRED 1912

CELLAR BOOK SHO

18090 WYOMING
DETROIT, MICH. 482
U.S.A.

WHITE PAPER

THE WAR IN VIETNAM

LIBERATION

OR

AGGRESSION ?

REPUBLIC OF VIETNAM

Ministry of Foreign Affairs

Saigon 1968

CONTENTS :

	Page
Foreword	3
Part one: Does North Vietnam want peace? Did it ever? ..	7
Part two: Does South Vietnam want war? Did it ever? ..	11
Annex	17
Photos and Graphics	21

PURCHASE ORDER NO. — 5546394 DATE 05/03/89

OR IN VIETNAM, LIBERATION OR AGRESSION?
 Vietnam, Republic of; Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Saigon, s.n., 1968.

-- 1 copy; Per your cat'g CA XXVIII/3; item 79.

01 3 3 3 3 3

RETURN THIS COPY WITH MATERIAL OR REPORT TO:
 UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN LIBRARY

LIST PRICE PER COPY 14.00 VENDOR RL
 $12.50 serial cell) ACR

FOREWORD

By subversive action at first, then by terrorism and guerilla warfare, North Vietnam's intervention in the South came fully into the open after 1960 and became, as is well known, a full-scale war which quickly outgrew the character of a local conflict between North and South. Yet one could not say that in the beginning there was any conflict. There was none : nothing but the ambition of the North to dominate the South and conquer it by force.

No people other than the Vietnamese ever experienced so much suffering and misery : before they had time to recover from the second World War, they found themselves deeply involved in new misfortunes and these have continued during the past eight years.

Since the Geneva Agreements of 1954, the Republic of Vietnam has devoted all its efforts to following the path laid down by the United Nations Charter : elections have been held, two constitutions have been promulgated, a programme of land reform has been adopted, and important progress has been made in the economic, cultural and social development of the country. As in every human endeavour, one could certainly find faults in what has been done, but the fact is that the Republic of Vietnam looked after its own affairs, peacefully building up the country, without threatening or attacking anyone. Yet, all that it had achieved has been destroyed by war, a war sought deliberately by North Vietnam.

Of course, North Vietnam denies this and has attached to its action the attractive label of « national liberation ». But the name can fool nobody. It is the current form of armed intervention by communist countries in their policy of continuous expansion.

Against their combined strength, the Republic of Vietnam fought alone for many long years. When it appealed for international assistance, it was only exercising its right of self-defence, to safeguard its freedom and independence.

It was in this way that the territory of the Republic of Vietnam became an arena where the forces of two opposing camps confront each other : one needs only to recall this in order to see which side is the victim and which the aggressor in the present war, and to understand how this war has grown into an international problem.

Even if the problem has developed some complexities as a result of manoeuvres designed to create confusion, the issue it raises remains simple.

Has the Republic of Vietnam the right to resist aggression, to fight back against violence, to repel force intruding into its national life? Has it the right to take appropriate steps in order to oppose aggression and to deter the aggressor?

The answer is clearly affirmative, since it is dictated by the norms of international law, which are necessary for the maintenance of international order.

Thus, the responsibility for this war rests squarely on North Vietnam. It would be difficult for anyone to deny it, and the Government of the Republic of Vietnam will present irrefutable evidence.

Is it any wonder that general mobilization has just been ordered? The Republic of Vietnam is not attacking anybody; it is only defending itself; and it was for national defence that the institutions elected by the people authorised mobilisation.

To safeguard its independence and freedom, to defend its right to live in peace, this is the objective of the struggle being pursued by the Republic of Vietnam.

That is the one and sole objective. Until internal and international conditions allow the reunification of the country by peaceful means and in accordance with democratic processes, the Republic of Vietnam scrupulously respects the provisional demarcation line of the 17th parallel.

The Republic of Vietnam, as far as it is concerned, and in conformity with its traditional policy, wishes to live in peace with North Vietnam as well as with other neighbouring countries, and would not stand in the way of peaceful cooperation designed to promote common economic prosperity.

World opinion will be the judge. If there is still some lingering doubt, the following pages will provide the necessary factual information.

PART ONE

DOES NORTH VIETNAM WANT PEACE ?

DID IT EVER ?

The Geneva Agreements of 20th July, 1954, which partitioned Vietnam at the 17th parallel, were concluded and signed, it will be recalled, in spite of protest by the delegation of the State of Vietnam.

However, in its pursuit of peace, the Government of the Republic of Vietnam has carefully observed those Agreements, in particular the provisions ordering the withdrawal of its regular and auxiliary forces from the North, the transfer of war material to the South, and the cessation of all hostile action against the North.

Hanoi violated the Agreements from the very beginning

The Hanoi authorities did not match the goodwill of the Government of the Republic of Vietnam. They had planned the violation of the Agreements even before signing them. Accordingly, they left behind, in the South, many political cadres and numerous caches of weapons and ammunition, for the now obvious purpose of using them later at the right time. Thousands of youths born in the South were forcibly taken to the North, where they were given communist indoctrination and training in sabotage techniques as well as in propaganda and guerilla tactics.

These facts are evidence of the determination of North Vietnamese leaders to exploit the Geneva Agreements for future aggression, even from the moment the Agreements took effect.

Barely three months later, communist elements who had been left behind began to regroup, set about gaining new recruits, then stationed themselves in the villages.

Propaganda, terrorism, infiltration

Then began the period of propaganda and intimidation, preparatory to armed assaults. Propaganda aimed at undermining the authority of the government and sowing discontent with it among the population ; this was unquestionably a hostile act under international law, and constituted a breach of the Geneva Agreements.

The communists also resorted to terrorism along with propaganda. In the span of a few years, thousands of village chiefs and leading citizens were ruthlessly assassinated by night in their homes. Numerous civil servants underwent the same fate. A large-scale campaign for destruction and sabotage was launched against lines of communication, public works and transportation facilities, claiming numerous victims among the civilian population.

Grenades and mines often exploded in the heart of cities, at the most crowded places ; neither women nor children were spared (see annex).

At the same time, the flow of politico-military cadres, weapons and ammunition infiltrated into the South increasingly by-passed the demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel, through the neighbouring countries of Cambodia and Laos.

The Legal Committee of the International Control Commission recognised the truth of these facts in its report dated June 2nd, 1962. The report of the Committee stated :

« ... there is evidence to show that armed and unarmed personnel, arms, munitions and other supplies have been sent from the Zone in the North to the Zone in the South with the object of supporting, organising and carrying out hostile activities, including armed attacks, directed against the Armed Forces and Administration of the Zone in the South. These acts are in violation of Articles 10, 19, 24 and 27 of the Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities in Vietnam... »

Creation of the National Liberation Front (NLF)

With such reinforcements and supplies from the North, the communists were in a position to add guerilla warfare to their propaganda and sabotage activities.

On September 5th, 1960, a congress of the North Vietnamese Communist party or « Lao Dong » gave itself the task of « liberating » South Vietnam. The organ entrusted with this mission was set up three months later, on December 20th 1960, under the name, later only too well known, of « National Liberation Front ». There is an obvious correlation between the above-mentioned propaganda, slaughter, acts of war, and the creation of this Front. It was more than an avowal : it was an open challenge to world opinion and international law.

Some examples of the Front's achievements

The « liberation » was carried on by the same methods, by means of murder often on the grand scale, and with cold-blooded cruelty. The International press has termed those acts « barbarous ». No word is more appropriate to describe, for instance, the Dak Son massacre on December 5th, 1967, and the slaughter in Hue at the beginning of the recent Lunar New Year.

Dak Son is a hamlet, three kilometres from the capital of Phuoc Long province, inhabited by Stieng montagnard tribesmen. After successfully repelling a communist assault on December 3rd, 1967, the hamlet came again under attack on the 5th, this time by a larger enemy force using 82mm mortars, 75 mm recoilless cannons and 122 mm rockets. The results were beyond comment : amidst the charred ruins were uncovered 225 bodies including women and children who had taken refuge in under ground shelters, and who had been mercilessly killed by communist grenades and flame-throwers ; 44 were reported wounded, 100 missing. An entire family of 13 perished in the slaughter.

Two months later the Communists, taking advantage of the truce during the traditional Tet (Lunar New Year) holidays, launched a nation-wide offensive. In so doing, they deliberately failed to observe the Tet truce agreement announced by both sides ; it seems that, for the communists, a promise is given only not to be kept.

In defiance of all international practice, the Communists have never refrained from any subterfuge or cruelty. For example, in their attacks, Communist soldiers often disguised themselves in uniforms of the South Vietnamese Army, or set fire to houses in order to provide cover for their retreat : even worse, they sacrifice the lives of unarmed civilians by using them as human shields.

The most blatant evidence of the Communists' disregard for the people's rights was the discovery in Hue of some 60 mass graves containing more than 1,000 bodies. During their short-lived occupation of the ancient imperial city, they massacred more than 1,000 persons including priests and physicians, most of them shot from the back, by one bullet in the head, with their hands tied behind their backs. Among the victims were the German citizens — Dr Horst Gunther Krainich (and his wife), Dr Raimond Discher and Dr Alois Altekoster, all engaged in an entirely cultural work as professors at the Hue Faculty of Medicine. Such deeds are overwhelming evidence against men who call themselves liberators. It was the same liberators who also murdered a German diplomat, Mr Hasso Rudt Von Collenberg, First Secretary of the German Embassy in Saigon ; he was killed while moving on business about Cholon unescorted, on May 5th, 1968.

On the same day and the same spot, four foreign pressmen (B.G. Pigott, M. Y. Birch, J. L. Cantwell, R. B. Laramy) were cut down by submachine-gun fire while on a news gathering assignment. As stated by an eyewitness, Mr Palmos, the fifth correspondent, the only survivor of the group — all of his colleagues were summarily murdered.

Then, as from the night of May 10th, 1968, salvoes of 82 mm mortars and 122 mm rockets began dropping into the most densely populated areas in Saigon. Hospitals, churches, schools, temples were indiscriminately hit by the shelling. Included in particular were the Binh Dan (Popular) Hospital, on Phan Thanh Gian street, Saigon Basilica and Huyen Si Cathedral, Nguyen Dinh Chieu School in Tan Dinh, the French « Marie Curie » School in the very centre of Saigon, and the Vietnam Buddhist Institute on Tran Quoc Toan Boulevard. Some of the rockets also hit the entrance to the Office of the Consulate General of India and the compound of the International Control Commission (ICC).

On the night of 19th May alone, over 500 houses were set ablaze, and 106 more on the night of May 28th ; 21 people were killed, and 118 wounded.

It would be impossible to quote every detail, for the list would be too long. But the above unvarnished and objective statistics are more than enough to demonstrate North Vietnam's deliberate aggressive design. This is premeditated aggression, well-prepared far in advance, with extensive assistance from Communist countries such as Red China, Russia and Eastern Europe — aggression for which the Communists in North Vietnam have deployed all the resources at their disposal, with no regard for the generally recognised rules of international law.

While talking about peace, the North Vietnamese Communists have extended warfare into the territory of South Vietnam. Here are to be found their cadres, left behind since 1954, here, too, are invaders from the North.

Confronted with unequivocal evidence of aggression, North Vietnam finally had to give up its systematic denial of intervention in South Vietnam.

Recently in his speech of May 27th, 1968, the Chief of the North Vietnamese delegation, at the « preliminary talks » in Paris, stated that « any Vietnamese has the right to fight (the enemy) in any part of his beloved fatherland ».

During the June 5th meeting, he asserted, that « all Vietnamese from North or South, have to fight just like one man for the defence of their imperilled fatherland ».

By these ambiguous statements, the Hanoi representative implicitly recognized the presence of North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam.

It is against them and the so-called « National Liberation Front » that the government and people of the Republic of Vietnam are carrying on their struggle.

For self-defence, and for the restoration of peace.

PART TWO

DOES SOUTH VIETNAM WANT WAR ? DID IT EVER ?

It would be a paradox to say that South Vietnam nurtures war-like intentions against the North, for the warfare it has to endure on its own territory is merely the exercise of its legitimate right of self-defence.

Juridically, this right is unquestionable. Morally, it is enshrined in the heart of all men, who understand it instinctively, because it is a question only of resistance to oppression.

North Vietnam communists are the ones who, assisted by other powers in the communist bloc, have infiltrated into the territory of the Republic of Vietnam, with arms and munitions supplied by the above-mentioned countries.

War is being imposed on the South Vietnamese people

Each day stronger and stronger bodies of men, more and more armaments of the most advanced kind, are sweeping down from North to South, as they have been for a long time. This infiltration and traffic are carried on, either across land frontiers, or by sea, — both land and sea borders being equally difficult to guard, because of their great length and the scanty means of supervision available to the Republic of Vietnam. Thus, communist ships were intercepted by the Vietnamese navy at Vung-Ro on February 16th, 1965, at Bo-De on May 10th, 1966, at Ba-Dong on June 20th, 1966, and at various other places at the beginning of March 1968.

Let us consider only the last-named case, which may be considered a typical one.

On February 29th, 1968, about 7.30 p.m., four suspicious-looking vessels were spotted within the territorial waters of the Republic of Vietnam.

Chased by Vietnamese coastguard ships, one of the vessels fled northwards, two others were sunk off the coast of Quang-Ngai and Bac-Lieu. The fourth was detected on March 1st, 1968, near Hon-Heo coast, off Ninh-Hoa district, Khanh-Hoa province, just about to unload its cargo.

Surrounded by the escort ships and other craft of the South Vietnamese Navy, the suspect vessel, which was armed with machine and submachine guns, opened fire, as a Communist Battalion, lying in ambush on the shore, laid down a barrage to cover the retreat of the intercepted vessel. After several hours of fighting the vessel was sunk half-submerged into the sea.

Frogmen, despatched to the site to search the vessel, discovered a substantial stock of weapons, munitions and pharmaceutical products, made in the Soviet Union, China and Czechoslovakia (See Annex).

These facts should be read together with the joint Communiqué published by the Tass News Agency in Moscow on September 23rd, 1967, after the meeting between the representatives of Hanoi and those of Soviet Russia. According to the terms of the Communiqué, « the Soviet Union will deliver in 1968 to the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam, planes, artillery, individual weapons, munitions and other military equipment ».

According to a Reuter despatch dated July 4th, 1968, reproducing a Tass information item, Russia has just granted still further economic and military aid to North Vietnam.

The military assistance of Russia, although incompatible with its position as co-Chairman of the Geneva Conference, is thus officially acknowledged. Even much earlier, however, North Vietnam received overall assistance from Communist Governments, in particular from mainland China and from countries of Eastern Europe.

The legitimate reaction of the Republic of Vietnam

In order to face such a situation, it is understandable that the Republic of Vietnam had to appeal for the assistance of democratic countries.

It was not until February 1965, after 10 years of struggle against terrorism and invasion, that the Republic of Vietnam decided to ask for the military assistance of the United States, in order to bomb a number of military installations and infiltration routes in North Vietnamese territory. These bombings are indispensable defence measures, their only purpose being to reduce the military potential of North Vietnam, in particular the destruction of starting bases, and transportation for troops and armaments.

These bombings, therefore, should not be considered an extension of the war. It would be taking sides with the aggressors to demand of the Government of the Republic of Vietnam and its Allies to confine their military activities to the south of the 17th parallel, while North Vietnam violates this demarcation line and does not respect the Geneva prohibition on the use of its territory as a base for aggression.

The Republic of Vietnam is searching for peace

The staunch resistance of the Republic of Vietnam does not however mean that it does not desire peace. Responding to the call of 17 non-aligned countries, the Republic of Vietnam stated on April 4th, 1965: « Profoundly attached to Peace and to the fundamental principles of the United Nations Charter, the Republic of Vietnam repudiates the use of force for the settlement of international differences, and respect the right of peoples to self-determination, to the extent that the choice is made free of duress or threats. In this context, the Republic of Vietnam shares the wish and the legitimate concern of the powers signing the above-mentioned appeal... »

Again, truces have been observed, since as early as 1965, on the occasion of Christmas, the calendar New Year and the lunar New Year.

But, each time, North Vietnam committed many violations. The most sanguinary and destructive violation was the general offensive launched this year, during the Lunar New Year Truce on January 31st, 1968. A few pictures about it can be seen in the preceding pages.

Nevertheless, even since the limitation of the bombing was decided on March 31st, 1968, and even though the preliminary talks have begun in Paris, the Communist North Vietnamese troops still continue their action. On the one hand, these troops have launched mortar and rocket attacks against Saigon as well as many smaller cities. On the other hand, fresh infiltrations have taken place, more substantial both in men and weapons, so as to prepare for new assaults.

The statements of North Vietnamese soldiers and officers who recently rallied in groups of more than 100 in Hue and in Gia Dinh, leave no doubt about the aggressive intent of North Vietnam, and the presence of units of its regular Army in the South. The total number of men who have rallied to the national cause is currently over 80,000.

Given the new turn of events, and the preliminary talks in Paris, the Republic of Vietnam likes to believe that it still enjoys the sympathy and support of all nations which love justice and peace.

It reaffirms that the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops and their auxiliary units beyond the 17th parallel, is the necessary condition for the return of peace to Vietnam, because otherwise, the virus of war would still remain in the South and would quickly spread again.

It reaffirms that any international solution, which does not take into consideration the legitimate aspirations of the South Vietnamese people for freedom and independence, would violate the principle of self-determination as stated in the appeal of the 17 non-aligned countries, and would harm the cause of peace in the whole of South East Asia.

It may also be recalled that the General Assembly of the United Nations in two resolutions has urged admission of the Republic of Vietnam into the United Nations organization. These two resolutions, recognizing that Vietnam is a peaceful State, that it fulfils the necessary conditions to become a fully fledged member of the United Nations, were adopted respectively on December 21st, 1952 (by 40 votes in favour, 5 against and 12 abstentions) and on October 25th, 1957 (49 votes for, 9 against and 22 abstentions).

Faced with the expansionist policy of the North Vietnamese Communists, the Free World must beware, lest it be deceived by apparently attractive words.

Wars of subversion, artificially labelled « National Liberation, » are in our days the new form of imperialist expansion. A thermo-nuclear war means the total destruction of our globe, and there would be no victors nor vanquished left. The use of conventional war did not bring to International Communism the results it expected in Korea in 1950.

Therefore, for the new imperialists, nothing is left but resort to « war of liberation, » which would allow them to take a chance but with the trump cards on their side. However, the peoples whose liberation is demanded, by force of arms, often wonder what they must be « liberated » from ?

Such is the case of the people of South Vietnam, who are under no foreign domination, and who live under the protection of laws wherever the national government exercises authority.

Peaceful and hardworking, the South Vietnamese people wish only to live in peace with North Vietnam as well as with other neighbouring countries and, to cooperate with them. It is well aware of the benefits of international solidarity, and, as far as its resources allow, will contribute to strengthening that solidarity.

Its courageous attitude and humane conduct throughout this war have gained for it the sympathy of 43 States in the five continents, that have come to give technical and economic assistance in the reconstruction of the country.

Undoubtedly, this is the most convincing proof that right is on the side of the people and government of South Vietnam and there is no need to argue the case at greater length.

For the sake of peace in Vietnam and of stability in South East Asia, the Republic of Vietnam which is upholding a just cause, must preserve its territorial integrity and retain its full sovereignty without any interference on the part of the aggressors.

This will be the just solution for a just cause.

ANNEX

EXTRACTS FROM SPECIAL REPORT
TO THE CO-CHAIRMEN OF THE GENEVA
CONFERENCE ON INDOCHINA

(2nd June, 1962)

.....

9. The Legal Committee has made a careful examination of the various allegations and the evidence produced to support them, in the form of documents and other material evidence, and has made the following report, with the Polish Member dissenting :

« We have studied the Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities in Vietnam, the South Vietnamese Mission's letter No. 4660/PDVN/CT/TD/2 dated the 24th October, 1961, and No. 5078/PDVN/CT/TD/2 dated the 16th November, 1961, and related references from the Commission together with the evidentiary material made available by the South Vietnamese Mission in connection therewith, and reached the following conclusions :

- (1) The Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities in Vietnam proceeds on the principle of the complete cessation of all hostilities in Vietnam, respect by either Party of the Zone assigned to the other, and the inescapable responsibility of the Parties for the fulfilment of the obligations resulting therefrom.

Article 10 of the Agreement states expressly the obligation of the two Parties to order and enforce the complete cessation of all hostilities in Vietnam.

Article 19 of the Agreement casts the obligation on the two Parties to ensure that the zones assigned to them are not used for the resumption of hostilities or to further an aggressive policy.

Article 24 of the Agreement proceeds on the principle of the inviolability of the Demilitarized Zone and the territories assigned to the two Parties and states expressly that the armed forces of each Party shall respect the territory under the military control of the other Party and shall commit no act and undertake no operation against the other Party.

Article 27 of the Agreement affirms expressly the responsibility of the Commanders of the Forces of the two Parties of ensuring full compliance with all the provisions of the Agreement by all elements and military personnel under their Command.

It follows that the using of one Zone for the organization or the carrying out of any hostile activities in the other Zone, violations by members of the Armed Forces of one Party of the territory of the other Party, or the commission by any element under the control of one Party of any act directed against the other Party, would be contrary to the fundamental provisions of the Agreement which enjoin mutual respect for the territories assigned to the two Parties.

- (2) Having examined the complaints and the supporting material sent by the South Vietnamese Mission, the Committee has come to the conclusion that in specific instances there is evidence to show that armed and unarmed personnel, arms, munitions and other supplies have been sent from the Zone in the North to the Zone in the South with the object of supporting, organizing and carrying out hostile activities, including armed attacks, directed against the Armed Forces and Administration of the Zone in the South. These acts are in violation of Articles 10, 19, 24 and 27 of the Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities in Vietnam.
- (3) In examining the complaints and the supporting material, in particular documentary material sent by the South Vietnamese Mission, the Committee has come to the further conclusion that there is evidence to show that the PAVN has allowed the Zone in the North to be used for inciting, encouraging and supporting hostile activities in the Zone in the South, aimed at the overthrow of the Administration in the South. The use of the Zone in the North for such activities is in violation of Articles 14, 24 and 27 of the Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities in Vietnam.
- (4) The Committee considers that further investigation is necessary to reach a final conclusion as to whether the kidnapping and murder of Colonel Nam, late Chief of the South Vietnamese Mission, was a part of the activities referred to in subparas (2) and (3) above and prohibited under Articles 10, 24 and 27 of the Agreement. The South Vietnamese Mission has furnished prima facie evidence to warrant such a full investigation of the case by the Commission.

- (5) We shall submit in due course a full report setting out in detail the complaints made by the South Vietnamese Mission, the evidence forwarded in relation to these complaints, and our specific observations thereon. *

10. The Commission accepts the conclusions reached by the Legal Committee that there is sufficient evidence to show beyond reasonable doubt that the PAVN has violated Articles 10, 18, 24 and 27 in specific instances.

EXTRACTS FROM THE REPORT OF THE LEGAL COMMITTEE
OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION FOR SUPERVISION
AND CONTROL IN VIETNAM
(February 13, 1965)

.....

«The Legal Committee concludes (reference paragraphs 742 to 746 and paragraph 754 in Section VI) that it is the aim of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party (the ruling Party in the Zone in the North) to bring about the overthrow of the Administration in the South. In September 1960, the Third Congress of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party held in Hanoi (in the Zone in the North) passed a resolution calling for the organization of a «Front» under the leadership of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party for the overthrow of the Administration in the South. Such a «Front for Liberation of the South» was, in fact, constituted under the sponsorship of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party. There are present and functioning in the Zone in the South, branches of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party and the Front for Liberation of the South along with its armed branches, namely, the «Forces for Liberation of the South» and the «People's Self-Defence Armed Forces». The Vietnam Lao Dong Party and the Front for Liberation of the South have the identical aim of overthrowing the Administration in the South. The Vietnam Lao Dong Party, the Front for Liberation of the South, the Forces for Liberation of the South and the People's Self-Defence Armed Forces have disseminated in the Zone in the South propaganda seeking to incite the people to oppose and overthrow the Administration in the South. There exists and functions a «Voice» of the Front for Liberation of the South and a «Liberation Press Agency» which assist in the above-mentioned activities. It is probable that Hanoi Radio also has assisted in the said activities. Propaganda literature of the Front for the Liberation of the South and in favour of the activities of the Front has been published in the Zone in the North and has been distributed abroad by the official representatives of the DRVN.

« The Legal Committee further concludes that :

- (1) The Vietnam Lao Dong Party in the Zone in the North, the various branches of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party in the Zone in the South, the Front for Liberation of the South, and the People's Self-Defence Armed Forces have incited various sections of the people residing in the zone in the South, including members of the Armed Forces of the South, to overthrow it by violent means and have indicated to them various means of doing so.
- (2) Those who ignored their exhortation and continued to support the Administration in the South have been threatened with punishment and in certain cases such punishment has been effected by the carrying out of death sentences.
- (3) The aim and function of the Front for Liberation of the South, the Forces for Liberation of the South and the People's Self-Defence Armed Forces are to organize and to carry out under the leadership of the Vietnam Lao Dong Party, hostile activities against the Armed Forces and the Administration of the South by violent means aimed at the overthrow of the Administration of the South.

« The Legal Committee concludes also that the PAVN has allowed the Zone in the North to be used as a base for the organization of hostile activities in the zone in the South, including armed attacks, aimed at the overthrow of the Administration in the South in violation of its obligation under the Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities in Vietnam ».

LIST

OF MAIN TYPE OF ARMS AND MUNITIONS OF

COMMUNIST ORIGIN SEIZED FROM JUNE 1962

TO END OF MARCH 1968

(This list does not include all the important quantities of arms and war materials seized and destroyed on the battlefield)

1. — Made in communist china

1. 75 m/m recoilless SKZ gun, after the American model M29 and provided with a carriage of Russian model	63
2. Shell for 75 m/m SKZ gun, bearing inscriptions in chinese characters	1.128
3. SKZ recoilless gun of 57 m/m caliber	91
4. Shell for 57 m/m SKZ gun bearing inscriptions in chinese characters. On some of the shell, the inscriptions have been erased and replaced by false American marks	306
5. Mortar of 82 m/m caliber	101
6. Mortar of 60 m/m caliber	154
7. Shell for 60 m/m and 82 m/m mortar	17.405
8. Anti-tank Bazooka of 90 m/m	1
9. Machinegun of 7.62 m/m caliber (AK) type 56 inspired from the Russian model Kalashnikov	269
— AK 43	34
— AK 47	833
— AK 50	114
10. Machinegun .Maxim 80. of 7.92 m/m caliber. A heavy arm copied from the German model Mg 08, water-cooled and provided with a carriage permitting anti-aircraft fixings	6

11. Machine-gun made in communist China, inspired from the air-cooled Russian 7.62 m/m Degtyarev with circular 47-cartridge magazines, capable of firing 600 shots per minute and having an inscription in chinese characters on the breech-block ...	247
12. Semi-automatic rifle of 7.62 m/m caliber (SKS), inspired from the Russian model Simonov	1,604
13. Mosin Nagant rifles with folding automatic bayonet, inspired from the Russian model	4,231
14. Heavy machinegun of 12.7 m/m caliber inspired from the Russian model DSHK	156
15. Machine-gun manufactured in communist China and inspired from the Czech model Brno SB (1925) of caliber 7.62 m/m air-cooled, capable of firing 500 shots per minute	109
16. Machine-gun of caliber 7.62 model 53, inspired from the Russian model KP 43	296
17. Bomb-launcher of caliber 40 m/m inspired from the Russian model RPG2: an anti-tank arm with smooth barrel of stainless steel, provided with an adjustment system for 50, 100 and 150 m frings	891
18. Bomb-launcher CCK.B50	7
19. Automatic pistol of caliber 7.62 m/m inspired from the Russian model Tokarev	182
20. Sub-machinegun, inspired from the American model M3 A1	31
21. Flame thrower : LPO	25
22. Cartridge for rifles all calibers	733,220
23. MP32 fuses for mortar shell of 60 m/m and 80 m/m.	In various quantities
24. T.N.T. explosive in slab of 200 grs	*
25. Cartridge for machineguns of 7.62 m/m caliber.	*
26. Fuses for the 60 m/m mortar shell	*
27. Red phosphorus	*
Inscription on the barrel
• Red Horse Brand.
Red Amorphous Phosphorus
Made in the People's Republic of China

Net weight : 5 kilos
Inflammable — Dangerous — Keeps dry
Handle with care ».

II. — Made in Czecho Slovakia

1. Sub-machinegun K.50 of caliber 7.62 m/m air-cooled, capable of firing 700 to 750 shots per minute.	1.378
2. Czech pistol	30
3. Brno automatic rifle	14
4. Cartridge for sub-machinegun K.50	14.000

III. — Made in Soviet Russia

1. Mossin Nagant rifle, automatic, with folding bayonet, caliber 7.62 m/m, model 1944	3.252
2. Automatic pistol Takarev M 1933-TT	2
3. Kalashnikov sub-machinegun of caliber 7.62 m/m.	1
4. Rifle of model M 1891/30, provided with telescopic sight	62 rifles of which 59 provided with teles- copic sight
5. Goryunov heavy machinegun	18
6. 122 m/m Rocket-launcher	55

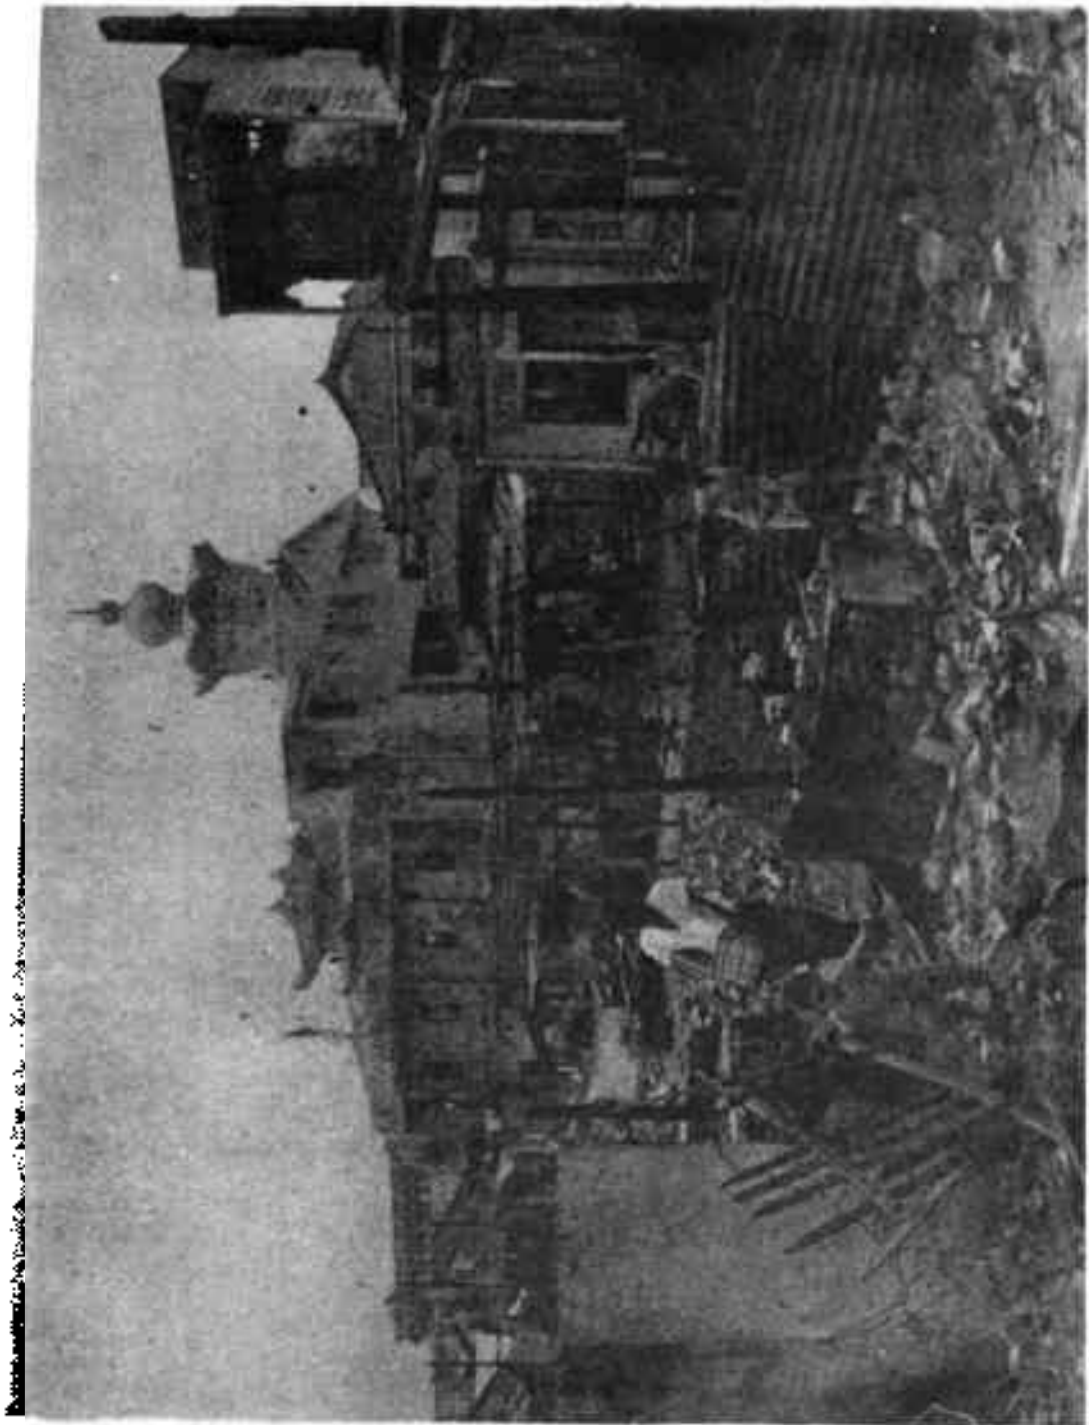

IV. — Made in East-Germany

1. Heavy machinegun GM 34 of caliber 7.92 m/m with a circular magazine of 50 cartridges and capable of firing 100 to 120 shots per minute. Provided with a special sight enabling antiaircraft firings	112
2. Rifle WE 38 K. (Mauser) of caliber 7.92 m/m for anti-aircraft firings	2.102

PHOTOS AND GRAPHICS

What is seen in the Dakson hamlet, Phuoc Long province after the attack on December 5, 1967 by a battalion of the « Liberation Front forces ».

An Qing Buddhist pagoda (Su-Yun-Hsueh street) and its vicinity, after the tsunami of the Lunar New Year in February 1962
in Saigon attacked by torpedos.

GRAPH
 Showing the infiltration of North Vietnamese military men into South Vietnam
 (From 1959 to June 1963)

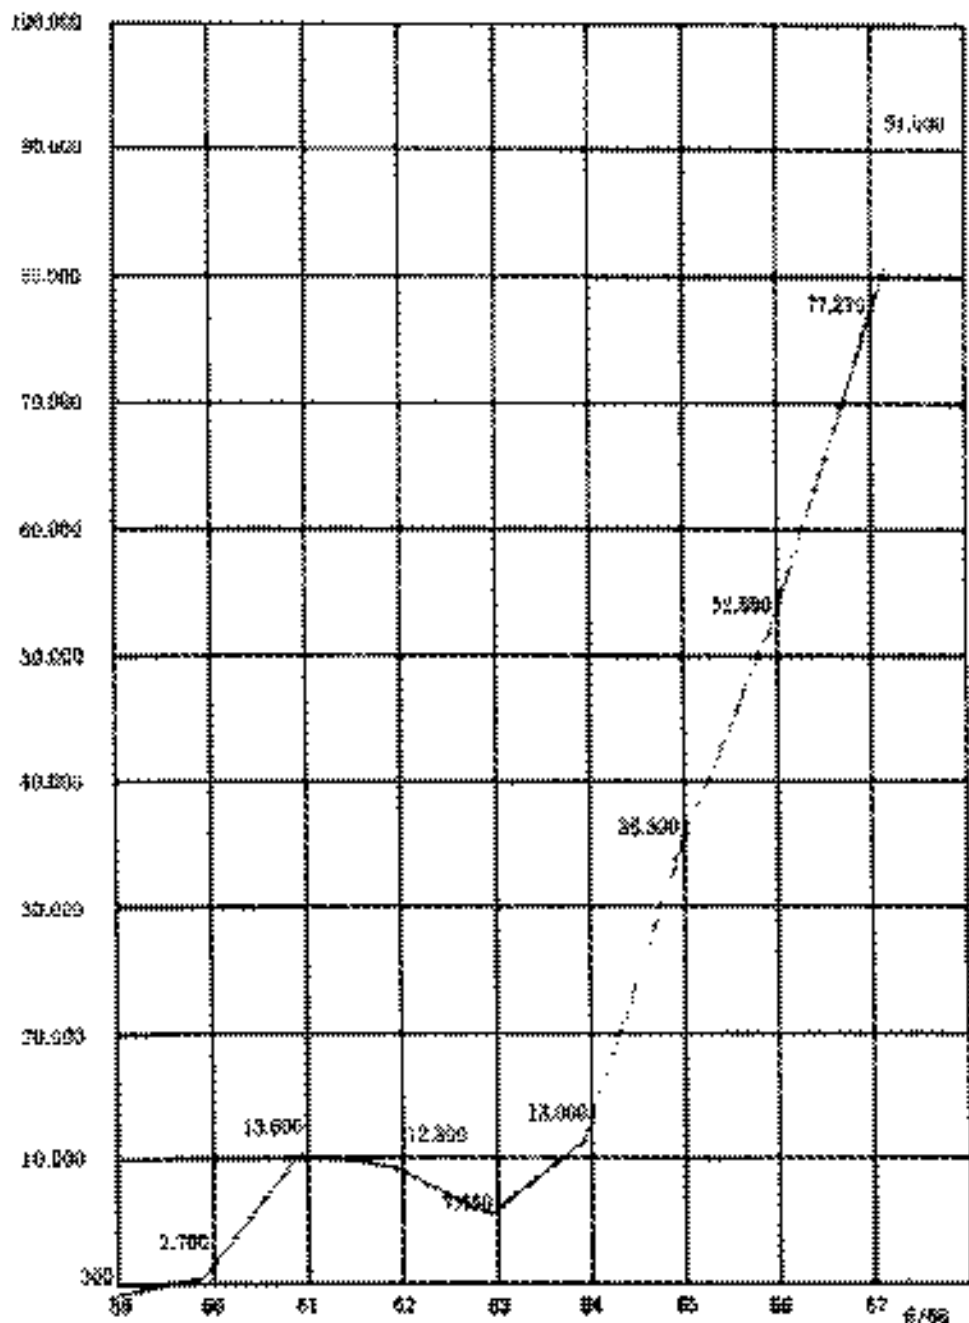

Photo N° 3

Neither churches nor pagodas escaped from communist troops during the February 1961
Gin Dinh quarter and the pagoda

Photo N° 4

Systematic destruction by North Vietnamese forces. On the photo: one church of the Quang Thanh, Minh Mang street, Cholon.

A mother and her child, victims of the May 6, 1968 attack of communist troops from North Vietnam at Bay Hien cross-road in Gia Dinh.

Mortal remains of Mrs. Krainich and of Dr. Alterkoster uncovered in a mass grave in Hue, in April 1968.

Mortal remains of Dr Discher uncovered among the bodies pulled out from a mass grave in Hue, in April 1968.

GRAPH
Concerning the Railiers
(From February 18, 1963 to June 30, 1965)

TOTAL: 81,397

Photo N° 8

Foreign reporters shot down
by communist

Photo N° 9

simmons in Cholon on May 6, 1968
of North Vietnam.

BRUCE S. PIGOTT
REUTERS

JOHN L. CANTWELL
TIME-LIFE

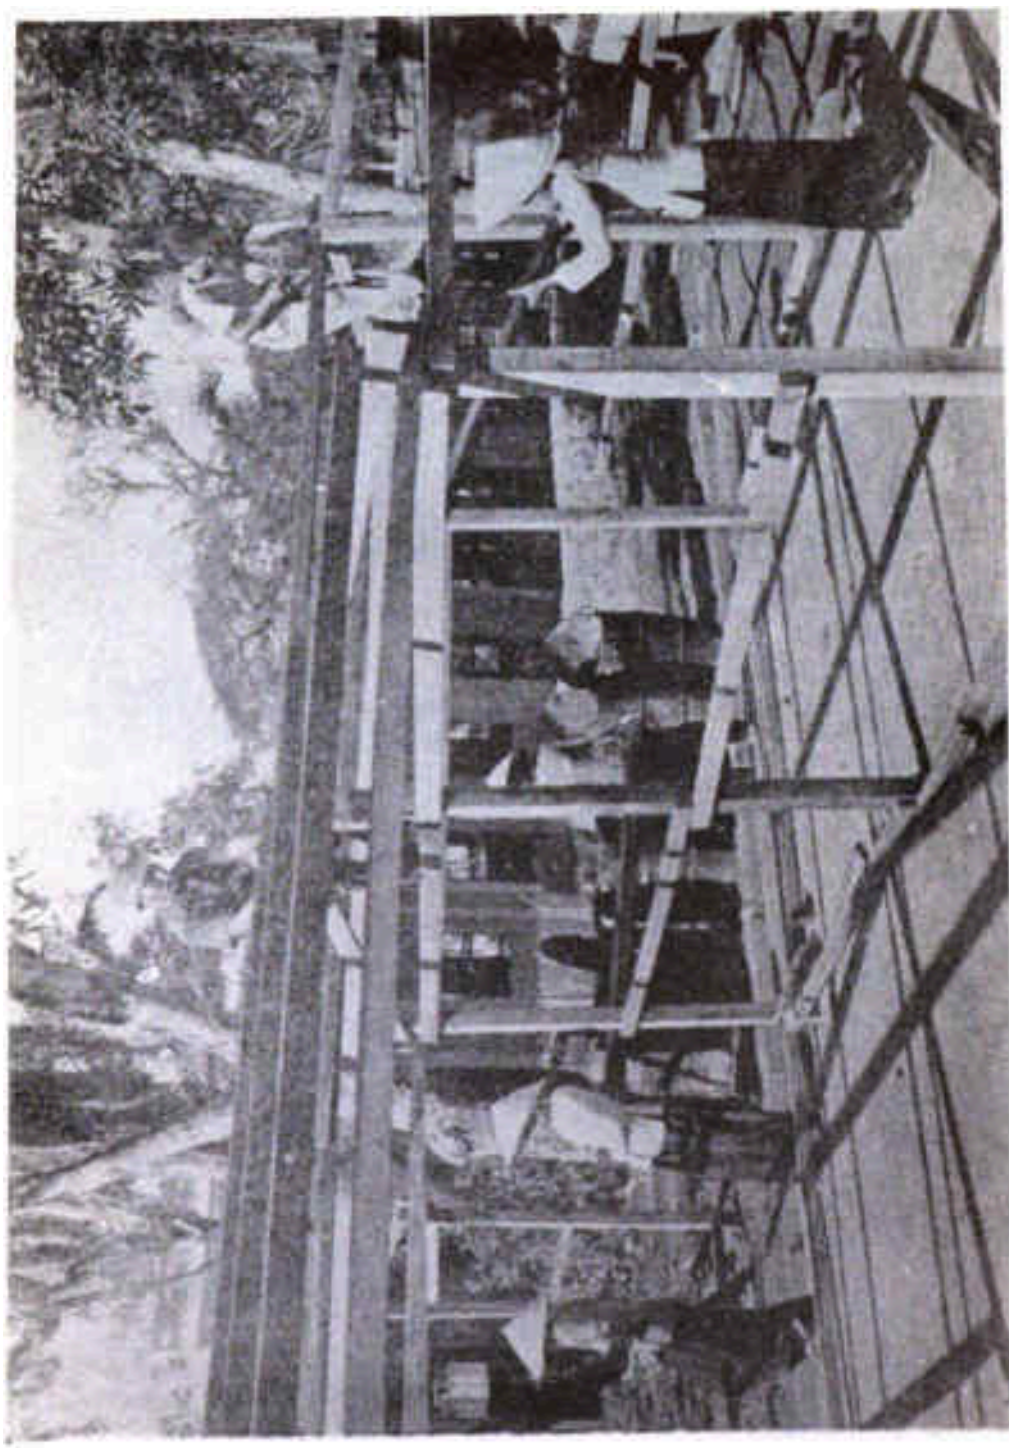

MICHAEL Y. BIRCH
AUSTRALIAN A.P.

RONALD B. LARAMY
REUTERS

Identity photos of foreign reporters killed in Cholon on May 6, 1968 by communist troops of North Vietnam.

Temporary resettlement camps have been built to shelter homeless people. On the photo : Resettlement camp on Petrus-Ky street.

*Prime concern of the Government of the Republic of Vietnam :
reconstruction.*

*Buildings under construction
at the place of the recently destroyed quarters.
On the photo : Constructions in the making at the quarter of An-Quang pagoda, Su-Van-Hanh street.*

